

THE BIOLOGICAL LABORATORY
LONG ISLAND BIOLOGICAL ASSOCIATION
COLD SPRING HARBOR, LONG ISLAND, NEW YORK

SYMPOSIA ON QUANTITATIVE BIOLOGY
XII. NUCLEIC ACIDS AND NUCLEOPROTEINS

20th, 1947

in biology and the other basic sciences, the Laboratory spect of quantitative biology, or in methods and theories ry. The aim is that every important aspect of a given d chemical, as well as from the biological, point of view. l nucleoproteins. As a rule the participants will be in resi- i.

s and take part in the discussions is limited by the avail- ily for registration early. Preference will be given to pect to take part in discussions. Discussions for which will be printed in the symposium volume.

June 11

ite, Bethesda, Md. Enzymatic degradation of the nucleic

e action of phosphatases on ribonucleic acid and ribo-

une 12

e structures of nucleic acids.

i, New York, N. Y. The nature of the interaction of nuclei

.. Louis, Mo. Nucleoproteins and enzyme formation.

re 13

Effect of ionizing radiations on proteins.

ncer Institute and Division of Industrial Hygiene, Na- liation on deoxyribose nucleic acid.

lon, England. Some factors influencing the nucleic-acid

une 14

d University of Pennsylvania Zoological Laboratory, Phil- mic development.

rinceton, N. J. Nucleoproteins and virus activity.

ne 16

proteins in virus reproduction.

., and University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine, aterial viruses: their isolation, structural relations,

University, New York, N. Y. On the nucleoproteins and

ne 17

5, France. Mutation dirigée chez le colibacille par prin-

. Mutations in E. coli induced by certain chemicals that

June 18

smical nature and functions of the components of cell ew York, N. Y. Chemical properties of isolated chromo-

Thursday, June 19

Coimbra, Portugal. Composition of chromonemata and matrix and the role of ia University, and Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research New York N. Y.

Prof B D Davis

MAR 12 1982 Howard

Archology 1946.

Dear Bernice

Is there any chance you have a file on the 1946 Cold Spring Harbor Symposium, and if so that you have a copy of the program?

Attached is the 1947 analogue.

Yours,
John

✓ 3/15/82

✗...bat→

Seri

likewise

Poll

within